

Getting to Zero HIV requires testing, treatment and prevention

Illinois has set a goal to get to zero HIV transmissions in Illinois. Reaching this objective will require diagnosing all cases of HIV and treating persons with HIV until the virus is undetectable and untransmittable (U=U).

Illinois HIV Care Connect plays a key role in the Getting to Zero effort by managing regional care agencies that facilitate medical, mental health and dental treatment and other services for persons living with HIV, as well as by coordinating prevention providers that encourage and promote HIV testing and the use of PrEP.

Illinois HIV Care Connect also works to eliminate the stigma of HIV, address health disparities, and educate both professionals and the general public on how to prevent and treat HIV.

Illinois HIV Care Connect is funded by the Illinois Department of Public Health.
